

Car Wash Open

The car wash at the Little Star Convenience Store opened on Monday, January 12.

As previously reported it is located behind the C-Store and is an environmentally green system.

There are two recycle tanks which allow the rinse water to be recycled. One tank will collect the water and the dirt and debris to filter down to the bottom of that tank.

The run-off will flow into the second tank which is recycled back into the car wash.

The remaining warm water will contain biodegradable detergents and de-greasers and will aid in reducing the residue in the sewer pipes and improve the water flow through system.

Tribe Refinances Casino Loan

Tribal Council closes on the loan refinance with of KeyBank

On Friday January 20, 2015 the documents were signed to re-finance the loan the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribe had with the Shakopee Nation. Tribal Treasurer Terrie K. Terrio said, "We have been working toward this for over a year to get our loan at a lower interest rate. We have accomplished this goal with KeyBank. We have decided to increase our payments to a little higher amount in order to shorten the life of the loan. In the end, we will be out of debt in seven years and save millions in interest." (Editor's Note: The Motion for this Resolution is in the Directives on page Thirteen of this issue of the Mohican News).

Community Growth Evident

One of the pictures in the Taconic subdivision

By Susan Savetwith
Mohican News Reporter

The community is growing and more folks are settling on tribal lands; in 2014, ground was broken on five new homes through the Division of Community Housing's Low Income Homebuyer Program and funding obtained through the Native American Housing and Self Determination Act (NAHASDA)

According to the Executive Director of the Division of Community Housing, Randy Young, through hard work and good fiscal management the Division of Community Housing was able to secure enough of their NAHASDA funds to build five new homes for low income families. "Three of the homes are currently being built in the Taconic subdivision; the infrastructure (community sewer, water and electricity) for housing has been in place for several years in this area, so it is good that tribal members finally get to take advantage of these services," Young said. "One home is being built on North Schmidt Lane and another is being built on East Townhall Road in Red Springs," Young added. "The homes consist of four three bedroom homes and one four bedroom home; the size of the homes is based on family composition," Young explained.

Young said the walls, roofs, windows and temporary construction doors have been installed on the five new homes being built. He said on the houses on Schmidt and Town Hall Roads, the well and septic has been installed and LP heating tanks have been set for all the homes. He said most of the homes are now having drywall installed and taped. The construction team worked hard to get the outside shells completed so inside work can be done during the colder weather.

Young said during the planning stages for home building, great deal of consideration is given to building the homes as energy efficient as possible within budget constraints but also keeping them affordable for the homebuyer to maintain. "We use energy star windows, doors and appliances along with increased insulation in strategic areas and high efficiency furnaces are also specified and installed to help decrease future energy costs for the home owner," Young explained. Young said a qualified contractor was chose and the quality of the work is inspected throughout the construction process to insure high workmanship and the specified materials are being used.

"The homes are currently about 60 to 70 percent completed and the home owners will hopefully be moving in in early spring," Young concluded.

Get Involved!

Tribal Council creates jobs for the rest of us to perform to make life better for our Community as a whole. Tribal Council also appoints Tribal members to take part in guiding these departments or making policy recommendations as boards and committees. So, the question remains for us, is that all there is? Are we done with our jobs? I think not!

It is time that we all start looking at what we can do to help out in the Community. We have had two positions on the Editorial Board for the Mohican News open for months and no one has signed up to fill them. There is a board at the Tribal office which has postings of positions available on boards and committees. Among them are: Editorial Board – two members needed; Investment Committee two members needed; Education Board one member needed; Language and Culture two members needed; Pow-Wow Committee multiple members needed; and, Enrollment Committee one member needed. These are paying positions, except for the pow wow committee. Get involved! Take part in your community by signing up to represent your Community on one or more of these boards or committees.

December 24, 2014

In a tight knit community such as ours, a newspaper is a powerful tool. It can by its existence influence many people about many community concerns. It can also honor and uplift members by who it puts forth and dishonor those it chooses to simply ignore. In our community every family is affected by our newspaper.

A Native mother has a lot of the same power within her family and among her neighbors. Her thoughts and influence can reach many and continues long after she has passed. My mother, Eleanor Martin, understood this and used both her family influence and the publication of our tribal newspaper to make her thoughts known to the community. It wasn't often there was a Mohican News published that didn't have a letter to the editor by her in it.

The Mohican News honors those community members who have died by printing an obituary in the column, "On the Trail Home." This is usually provided by the funeral home handling the arrangements. It provides a bit of closure to the family and friends and neighbors of one of us who has died.

Eleanor Martin died on September 16, 2014. To this date, her obituary has not appeared in the Mohican News, even though Swedberg Funeral Home staff did send it to the Mohican News. An unfortunate oversight, but the family has missed it and been hurt by it.

The January 1, 2015 edition of the Mohican News is featuring an across the fold spread of pictures of 28 tribal Elders who have died this year. Eleanor Martin does not appear. Two oversights are difficult to believe. My neighbors have asked me if I know why this happened. I do not.

For the family and friends and neighbors of Eleanor Martin, I have contacted Swedberg Funeral Home and they have promised to resend her obituary for publication in a future edition of Mohican News. I know we look forward to seeing this and remembering Eleanor as a community member who used her voice to inform the community.

Bill Martin, Tribal Member
Bowler, Wisconsin

(Editor's note: A member of the family stated explicitly in September that Eleanor did not want her obituary to be included in the Mohican News. During this time of grieving the staff of the Mohican News honored their request. We did not check with other family members to see if this was a decision made by the entire family. Now a family member has come forward and asked us to include the obituary in the Mohican News and we will most certainly honor this request).

On the Trail Home

Barbara K. Kroll,

Barbara, 58, of Darboy, passed away with her family beside her at home early Monday evening, Oct. 20, 2014, after a sudden and heart-wrenching bout of cancer.

Barb was a beloved wife, mother, mentor and friend to so many people. She took pride in assisting and educating others, and shied away from the attention that she truly deserved for her caring attitude to everyone.

As an educator, she enriched the lives of hundreds of students in more than 30 years of teaching, and loved running into them years after having taught them. She developed many friendships during that time, while also being the strong foundation of her family. The guidance she gave on how to live life and show respect to others can never be replaced.

Barb was united in marriage to her husband, Doug, on July 8, 1983. They raised two daughters, Rebecca and Kelsey, and watched them grow into beautiful, caring young women who share all of Barb's wonderful traits.

Barb grew up in Menasha, where she graduated from high school with the Class of 1974. Her class celebrated its 40th class reunion this summer, but Barb missed the reception when her diagnosis was discovered the same day. From that point on, many of her classmates kept in contact with her in a way that touched her heart immensely.

Barb earned her bachelor's degree in education from UW-Stevens Point in 1978. Her first teaching position was in Ripon, and then after earning further certification, she moved to Eau Claire where she taught until 1989. She and her family lived there until Doug was transferred through employment to Baraboo for three years. Her career blossomed, however, when the two of them secured employment back in the Fox Valley.

She beamed with pride after being hired to teach in Menasha, the district where she grew up as a child. The move was more special because it brought her back home to be with her parents and sister's family. While teaching in Menasha, Barb also earned her Master's degree from St. Norbert's College in De Pere.

Barb brought a special sense of dedication to teaching and offered encouragement to every student who went through her classroom. Her dedication matched the perfection with which she completed every task. This trait made her decision to retire in 2011 that much more difficult. She knew the time was right, however, and then dedicated herself to taking care of her family, keeping a beautiful home, and mentoring her special young "grand-neighbors" Aaron and Alma. Still, she kept up with education by working in the after-school tutoring program at the school she retired from, Gegan Elementary.

Barb was preceded in death by her parents Murray and Janet Miller. Their passing left a void in her life, but she never forgot them and kept them in all her traditions.

Barb is survived by her husband, Doug, along with daughters Rebecca and Kelsey. She is also survived by her sister Lynn (Gordon) Cudahy, Tamarac, Florida, and niece Heather (Luis) Ceruti and their son Gavin, Sunrise, Florida. She is further survived by numerous aunts, uncles and cousins, along with the in-laws through Doug's family.

Barb was at peace with her diagnosis once it was discovered, and feared only for the well-being of her family. With all the visitors she had at St. Elizabeth Hospital and at home, she promised she would only cry once, at the first meeting, and then enjoy the memory of seeing so many people. She lived that motto to the end.

The family of Barb would like to extend its heartfelt gratitude to the staff of St. Elizabeth's oncology department, and especially to the staff of Theda Care's At-Home hospice services, with special attention to Amy for her dedication, care and concern.

Homelands Update

By Bonney Hartley, Tribal Historic Preservation Assistant

The area of Historic Preservation that is sort of the "bread and butter" where much of our effort goes is in carrying out a federal law called Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The law was revised in 1992 to allow more formal decision-making from Tribes over their own resources.

Any project that has federal involvement, meaning there is federal funding, permits, or the project is run by federal agency, must consult with Tribes who have a cultural interest in that area.

Projects that are private, such as individual landowners building residences or businesses, or local government projects, are not subject to this law.

Our Historic Preservation office reviews more than 300 federal projects under Section 106 each year, with the goal to protect and preserve Mohican culture. Especially now with being based in New York, one of my main responsibilities is to visit the projects on-site and be able to better consult in person.

For one recent particular Section 106 project, we wanted to highlight how we were able to make great strides in advancing our tribal interests in the consultation process. It is a business development project in Coxsackie, New York, which is about 25 miles south of Albany.

The area is rich in Mohican history and the archeology showed evidence of seasonal camps and toolmaking by our ancestors. We worked collaboratively with the developer Greene County Industrial Development Agency (IDA), the federal agency Army Corps of Engineers, the archeologist, and the New York State Historic Preservation Office to ensure that our cultural sites were left intact to the greatest extent possible.

The construction plans were successfully redesigned to avoid disturbance of Mohican sites for more than 90% of the project.

Secondly, as part of the mitigation for the one area of the project that did disturb cultural sites, we achieved a significant milestone in having the developer agree to a cultural education program that would be formally included in the Army Corps of Engineers permit process. It is always a desire of our tribe to be less "invisible" and to have our history as well as our current existence be more accurately told.

Usually when we work on a project, they have no idea that the Mohican tribe exists. This Section 106 project was exemplary in that the Executive Director of Greene County IDA, Rene' Van Schaack, enthusiastically agreed to put funds toward an educational project that we will design and co-develop.

Our current idea is for a public seminar in the next year; details to come. It will be a welcome and more meaningful change from the usual one-dimensional outcomes of Section 106 projects like a report only.

Finally, the project was an advancement for us because we were able to negotiate that we can recover and curate the cultural materials that are found in the excavations on the site. This will be stone tools such as drills, scrapers, and projectile points.

This is our desire on every project, but this was the first time it has happened for us for Section 106 and been formally included in the permit. Most of the time the archeologists keep the cultural items in their facilities, or they transfer them to be curated at an in-state museum or university. We are pleased with this outcome and hope that it is only the beginning.

This was an exceptional outcome, made possible largely by the goodwill and strong support of our tribe by the developer Rene' Van Schaack who went the extra mile to work with us.

We wanted to respectfully share this positive story of progress in New York with the community.

Barrasso (R-WY), chair of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs delivered the Congressional response.

"Indian Country is leading. Indian Country is innovating. Indian Country is growing. And the state of Indian nations grows stronger by the day," said Cladoosby in the opening moments of the speech. Cladoosby is President of NCAI the oldest, largest, and most representative American Indian and Alaska Native organization in the country.

"Today, I bring a simple message from the tribes of the 21st Century: We must tear down barriers to growth, simplify regulations that are limiting opportunities, and acknowledge that tribes have the capability as governments to oversee our own affairs," continued Cladoosby during the address delivered to a studio audience at the Newseum in Washington, DC. "Congress and the Administration need to find ways to help bring federal agencies out of the 19th Century and into the 21st Century. We need them to be partners for growth and not barriers to growth."

Remarking on the historic visit by President Obama to the Standing Rock Sioux Nation last year, President Cladoosby extended a personal invitation to Speaker Boehner, Leader Pelosi, Majority Leader McConnell, and Minority Leader Reid – as well as every Member of Congress to visit Indian Country in 2015.

During the major policy address NCAI and Cladoosby outlined a clear plan and top-level priorities for Congress and the Administration that could attract bipartisan support:

FUNDING THE TRUST RESPONSIBILITY

• The organization released a 130 page report The FY 2016 Indian Country Budget Request: Promoting Self-Determination, Modernizing the Trust Relationship, outlining a plan for funding the federal government's trust responsibility through the budget process.

TAX REFORM

• NCAI called on congress to advance tribal tax reform to enable tribes to raise tax revenue free from overlapping state taxation, and to create incentives for business and jobs.

TECHNOLOGY ACCESS

• NCAI proposed the federal government accelerate work to partner with the private sector to expand broadband connectivity in Indian Country and ensure a comprehensive study of the digital divide facing tribal nations.

ACCESS TO CAPITAL

• NCAI proposed extending access to capital by recognizing the equal status of tribal governments to access tax exempt bonds and ensuring tribal inclusion in the New Markets Tax Credit Program.

ENERGY REFORM

• NCAI urged Congress to pass Indian energy legislation like that proposed by Chairman Barrasso that would provide tribes with greater control and flexibility to develop their traditional and renewable energy resources.

GOVERNMENTAL PARTNERSHIP

• NCAI called on Congress and the Administration to ensure that tribal nations have a seat at the policymaking table by consulting with tribes on all policy issues such as the Keystone Pipeline, renewable energy, health care, and education.

EDUCATION REFORM

• NCAI called on Congress to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act this year with tribal provisions to encourage tribal-state partnerships, strengthen local control of education, and begin to help every school deliver a high-quality education.

• NCAI proposed that Congress should enact legislation that supports Native language programs so education for our children is rooted in our history and culture.

ADDITIONAL HIGHLIGHTS

• NCAI called on financial sponsors of the Washington DC football team to join "fair-minded Americans" by standing with NCAI, tribes, Native organizations, civil rights organizations, religious leaders, and others to change the mascot of the Washington DC football team;
• NCAI applauded the President's proposal to make the first two years of tribal and community college free. NCAI promised to work with Congress & Administration to make this investment in assuring K-through-14 education in America.

Lori Mueller's students have been interviewing Mohican Elders from the Stockbridge-Munsee Community as part of their Mohican Unit in Social Studies. Eunice Stick came to visit her students in November. She was interviewed by the class, and an article was written by Darby Rockman to share what was learned from this wonderful learning experience.

Stockbridge Munsee Elder Eunice Stick

By: Darby Rockman

Could you imagine having to work till you were 88 years old? Our class met a lady who did. Her name is Eunice Stick, and she is a member of the Stockbridge Munsee Band of Mohican Indians, and she is part of Turtle Clan.

Eunice grew up in a family of six. Her brother hunted gophers and got 10 cents for each one that he got. He gave it to his parents to help out his family. They got yeast so it could be used to make bread. Eunice didn't have much time to play when she was little because she took care of her mom. Eunice only has one sister left.

Eunice went to a government school. She said, "It was hard because I missed out on some training." Eunice talked about bullies. She said there was a girl bully in school who was really mean. Eunice never finished school, but she did go to Wausau to get her GED. After that, she went to weekend college at UWSP, where she got her associate degree.

Eunice had many jobs throughout her life. The first job she applied for was folding laundry. Then she got a job at a tannery. It was hard work. When the war broke out, she got a job in a brewery because men were at war.

Something that might surprise people is that one time she went to Shawano and waited to midnight to catch a train to Milwaukee to see a movie with Shirley Temple in it. She got to Milwaukee at 5 a.m. Eunice's advice to kids is to "Stick with school as long as you can, because it's your future." She said some day we will have a family, and getting an education will help get us a job.

My classmates asked some questions like "Can you tell us about things that concern you?" Eunice's answer was our education. Also, "What do you think makes a good friend?" Eunice's answer was someone who is nice to their mom. A good friend is like a brother or sister.

I am fortunate enough to personally know Eunice and call her Grandma.

At the Bowler Elementary's "Fun with Food" 2nd Quarter Rewards Assembly first-grade teacher, Abby Gotelaere, got a pie in the face from 2nd grader, Paige Treptow, as a stunned audience looked on.

Hypothermia

Highlights

- When exposed to cold temperatures, your body begins to lose heat faster than it can be produced.
- Low body temperature may make you unable to think clearly or move well.
- You may not know you have hypothermia.
- If your temperature is below 95°, the situation is an emergency—get medical attention immediately.

When exposed to cold temperatures, your body begins to lose heat faster than it can be produced. Prolonged exposure to cold will eventually use up your body's stored energy. The result is hypothermia, or abnormally low body temperature. Body temperature that is too low affects the brain, making the victim unable to think clearly or move well. This makes hypothermia particularly dangerous because a person may not know it is happening and won't be able to do anything about it.

Hypothermia is most likely at very cold temperatures, but it can occur even at cool temperatures (above 40°F) if a person becomes chilled from rain, sweat, or submersion in cold water.

Victims of hypothermia are often (1) elderly people with inadequate food, clothing, or heating; (2) babies sleeping in cold bedrooms; (3) people who remain outdoors for long periods—the homeless, hikers, hunters, etc.; and (4) people who drink alcohol or use illicit drugs.

Recognizing Hypothermia

Warnings signs of hypothermia:

- Adults:
- shivering, exhaustion
 - confusion, fumbling hands

- memory loss, slurred speech
 - drowsiness
- Infants:
- bright red, cold skin
 - very low energy

What to Do

If you notice any of these signs, take the person's temperature. If it is below 95°, the situation is an emergency—get medical attention immediately.

If medical care is not available, begin warming the person, as follows:

- Get the victim into a warm room or shelter.
- If the victim has on any wet clothing, remove it.
- Warm the center of the body first—chest, neck, head, and groin—using an electric blanket, if available. Or use skin-to-skin contact under loose, dry layers of blankets, clothing, towels, or sheets.
- Warm beverages can help increase the body temperature, but do not give alcoholic beverages. Do not try to give beverages to an unconscious person.
- After body temperature has increased, keep the person dry and wrapped in a warm blanket, including the head and neck.
- Get medical attention as soon as possible.

A person with severe hypothermia may be unconscious and may not seem to have a pulse or to be breathing. In this case, handle the victim gently, and get emergency assistance immediately. Even if the victim appears dead, CPR should be provided. CPR should continue while the victim is being warmed, until the victim responds or medical aid becomes available. In some cases, hypothermia victims who appear to be dead can be successfully resuscitated.

STATE HEALTH OFFICIALS CONFIRM PEDIATRIC INFLUENZA DEATH

First Reportable Death for the 2014-2015 Influenza Season

MADISON – The Department of Health Services and the City of Milwaukee Health Department today confirmed that a child in the city of Milwaukee has died from complications related to influenza. In Wisconsin, deaths from influenza are only reportable if they are pediatric (under age 18) deaths.

Because of patient confidentiality laws and out of respect for the family, neither the Department of Health Services nor the City of Milwaukee Health Department will be releasing the decedent's sex, age, race or location of residence.

"Seasonal influenza is not life-threatening for most people; however, this is a serious disease that can be especially dangerous for children, older adults, individuals with compromised immune systems and those with chronic health illnesses," said Karen McKeown, State Health Officer. "It is still important to get a flu shot to help protect yourself and your friends and loved ones who may be at high risk for complications from the flu." The flu shot can reduce the severity of flu symptoms among those who get the flu, and reduce rates of hospitalization and death.

Influenza is a contagious respiratory disease caused by a virus. The flu vaccine helps prevent complications that can be caused by the flu, such as pneumonia or hospitalization. With few exceptions, officials recommend that individuals aged six months and older be immunized. Getting vaccinated against influenza is especially important for people aged 50 and older, and those with underlying health conditions. Getting vaccinated is equally important for those who have frequent contact with young children, as children are hospitalized or die from flu complications each year in the United States.

Flu season for Wisconsin generally occurs between late October and May, with peak activity around late January or early February.

Influenza can range from mild to severe, and in some cases can cause life-threatening complications. Symptoms can come on quickly and include fever, headache, dry cough, sore throat, nasal congestion, body aches and tiredness. If someone does get the flu after getting vaccinated, it is more likely to be a milder case.

To get your flu vaccine and vaccine for your family, contact your health care provider, pharmacy, local public health department or tribal health clinic, or go to www.flu.gov (link is external) to find a flu vaccination center near you.

Health officials also suggest these important steps:

- Wash your hands often with soap and water, or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.
- Cover your cough or sneeze with your upper sleeve, and try to avoid touching your face with your hand. If you use a tissue, throw it away after one use.
- Use your own drinking cups and straws.
- Avoid being exposed to people who are sick with flu-like symptoms.
- Eat nutritious meals, get plenty of rest and do not smoke.
- Frequently clean commonly touched surfaces (e.g., doorknobs, refrigerator handle, telephone, faucets).

If you think you have the flu, call your doctor. Stay home, rest, drink plenty of liquids, and avoid using alcohol and tobacco.

Health Officials Urge Residents to Stay Home If They're Sick

MADISON—Wisconsin is experiencing an especially bad influenza season, and the state Department of Health Services (DHS) is urging people who may have the flu, or other illnesses, to stay home from work or school to avoid spreading sickness.

DHS also urges state residents to avoid visiting elderly family, friends, or anyone in a long-term care facility, such as a nursing home, if they are under the weather.

Influenza is a contagious disease that infects the respiratory tract (nose, throat, and lungs).
