(Submitted Article) The Biden administration on Thursday announced a plan to provide nearly $1 billion in broadband expansion, digital literacy and workforce development grants to tribal nations. The "Tribal Broadband Connectivity Program," established in late 2020 as part of pandemic relief funds in the Consolidated Appropriations Act, will distribute grants from the National Telecommunications and Information Administration that are available to all 574 tribal nations, including those in Alaska and Hawaii. The money can be spent to lay fiber optic cables, launch digital literacy programs and support apprenticeships and job training for building network infrastructure, Vice President Kamala Harris said in a federal briefing at the White House on June 3, 2021.

While this will create challenges for the new GM, it will also provide for creative opportunities to service guests as the number of people in the casino are allowed to increase.

The new GM is an enrolled member of the Oneida Nation. He has a large family with four boys and two girls and seven grandchildren. He and his wife Belinda live in Oneida, WI. His parents are Betty and the late Lee "Gordy" McLester, author and longtime tribal historian, who passed from Covid a year ago. Mission Lake Algae

Mission Lake, June 2, 2021

Over the years, the Ecology Department's Clean Water program has received questions about the condition of Mission Lake, in particular the drastic changes in water clarity and color. This spring, Mission Lake appeared brown in color once the water temperature warmed enough for plant and algae growth. This is caused by an influx in algae growth before the aquatic macrophytes (plants) have a chance to take up the available nutrients. The algae then shades out the vegetation, prolonging the algae dominated period. Throughout the spring, different species of algae can dominate, depending on environmental conditions that favor one over another. Eventually, aquatic macrophyte growth catches up and 'locks up' enough of the available nutrients that algae growth subsides. The SMC Clean Water program took samples a number of years ago and determined that the dominant algae at the time was a green algae in the Volvox genus. This algae is a colonial algae that grows in formations that look like a globe. On June 2, 2021, a similar sample was taken and it was determined that a blue-green algae called Aphanizomenon was the dominant species growing. This illustrates the dynamics of algae growth and how environmental factors such as temperature and light availability determine what algae type will dominate at any given time. Aphanizomenon can produce toxins that are harmful to humans and their pets through ingestion or direct contact, which is why it is wise to avoid getting in water that appears to have any algae bloom. Mission Lake has higher nutrient levels than the other area lakes which is why it typically produces algae blooms on an annual basis. Excessive nutrients can be a result of the natural aging process of a lake but can be accelerated by certain land use practices within the watershed. Practices such as native shoreline plantings, vegetated buffer strips, no-till agriculture, and avoiding excessive fertilizer applications are a few ways to reduce nutrient inputs into surface waters. The Ecology Department's Clean Water program is continually looking for ways to protect and improve the surface water resources found on and around Stockbridge-Munsee land. Please feel free to contact the program with any questions or concerns. Phone: 715-793-4818 Email: water@mohican-nsn.gov

Please knock on the front door and wait until you are greeted. Occasionally, employees may be in the field so emailing or calling first is recommended.

Departmentally issued permits are free to Tribal Members and can be issued on the spot or after a quick evaluation.

Permits the Department can issue: (FW) Free-Use Firewood for personal use, (DM) Domestic Maintenance for yard tree removal, (MS) Maple Syrup for the use of forest roads during spring break up, and Ginseng Gathering for personal use.

Tribal Council approved permits must be requested in writing through the Forestry Department, taken to the Forestry Committee, then the action recommended to the Council for approval. Often a charge or bond will be associated with these types of permits. Due to the timing of meetings, these permits can take a few months to get approved so please consider this when planning a project and submit requests early.

Permits the Forestry Committee and Tribal Council must approve: (FS) Firewood Selling, (DU) Domestic Use for forest products for personal use (examples: fence posts or cedar bows), (DB) Domestic Building for the construction of a building, and (DC) Domestic Clearing for the clearing of an assignment for building a home or other permanent structure.

The hours of operation will be Monday-Friday 8:00-4:30, unless we must close for some reason. The closing dates will be posted on the door of the building.

Memorial Library and Museum

Welcome Back!

By Heather Bruegl, Director of Cultural Affairs

We are so excited to announce that the Arvid E. Miller Memorial Library and Museum has opened back up to the public!

It was a long year without any visitors, but we are back and couldn't be happier. You will see some changes when you come into the building and these changes are meant to keep both staff and visitors safe. You will notice on the floor there will be arrows that will guide you safely through the museum along with reminders to social distance while inside. There are plexi glass dividers that are up as well to protect you and staff while you are making purchases from the gift shop. In addition to that, for research appointments, we do have plexi glass separating the public computers. We also have hand sanitizer placed throughout the building.

Appointments are recommended, but not required. If you are coming in for research purposes, we do ask that you call ahead and schedule an appointment and that you fill out a Research Request form so we can be prepared for your visit. Capacity inside the building will be limited to 10 persons at a time. When you walk in you will have your temperature taken and masks will be required for all persons regardless of vaccination status.

Our hours of operation are Monday thru Friday 8 am to 4:30 pm. And to make an appointment you can call (715) 793-4834 or email Cultural.Affairs@mohican-nsn.gov.

We will still hold a majority of our programs online, so remember to follow us on Facebook at Arvid E. Miller Library Museum and Cultural Affairs Department. Programs are streamed live there and posted so that you can watch at your leisure. We are excited to welcome you back and look forward to seeing you again!

National Education Collaborative Chooses CMN for Major Grant

College of Menominee Nation
KESHENA • GREEN BAY

KESHENA, WI – The College of Menominee Nation (CMN) is one of six U.S. institutions of higher education to be selected for grants from the Early Educator Investment Collaborative (EEIC). CMN, which will receive $674,000, is the only awardee from a Midwestern state and the only tribal college to be chosen.

Funds will support initiatives for students preparing for work in the field of Education, one of the most popular career paths for those enrolled in CMN's Associate Degree program. At the baccalaureate level, more than 70 percent of all CMN graduates hold a Bachelor's Degree in Education.

EEIC funding comes from an alliance of eight major U.S. foundations that support the EEIC vision of "a country where there is no opportunity gap among children, (and) where every child makes lasting gains in cognitive, social, and emotional development through their early care and education experience."

Through the combined $10.4 million in grants being awarded in 2021, the Collaborative aims "to elevate the early care and education workforce, break down systemic barriers in higher education for early educator students of color, and promote professional compensation for a workforce frequently paid unjust wages."

Along with the award to CMN, this year's grants are going to California State University, Sacramento; University of Colorado, Denver; Georgia State University; North Seattle College; and University of Hawai'i at Manoa.

"I was actually speechless when news came that the Collaborative had selected the College of Menominee Nation," says Dr. Kelli Chelberg, CMN faculty member and author of the competitive-grant application. "This award benefits not only our teacher education students, but ultimately will have a significant impact on the children who our graduates are going to serve in our schools and in our broader community, on and off the reservation." The Collaborative's goal of helping

Golf For Justice Fundraiser

It's been an honor for me to serve on the Board of Directors for Wisconsin Judicare for a number of years now. I'm on the Board representing the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council and I'm currently the Board Chairman. As you may know, WJI is a non-profit, civil legal service provider dedicated to providing equal access to justice for residents of Wisconsin's northern 33 counties and 11 federally recognized Indian tribes. Our mission is to provide legal assistance to those who otherwise cannot afford it.

Historically, WJI has a long history of providing legal counsel on significant Indian law cases in Wisconsin (e.g., Menominee Restoration, the Voigt case, the Crandon School District case, the American Indian Religious Freedom Act Amendments of 1994). WJI's Indian Law Office has one of the best Indian law libraries in Wisconsin, including resource materials specific to Indian tribes and Indian legal issues from Wisconsin, as well as nationally.

The services that we provide to low income people and the Tribes cover a wide spectrum of legal areas. That of course, requires money. As with most non-profits, funding is always a challenge. To supplement our funding WJI has been holding a "Golf for Justice" fundraiser. This year we will be having our 5th Annual on September 10th, at Pine Hills Golf Course, near Gresham, WI. This will be the second consecutive year that it will be held at Pine Hills.

The cost of golfing is $75.00 which includes 18 holes of golf (with cart), lunch, fun and games and a chance to win $10,000 for a "hole-in-one". There will also be raffles and other fun stuff. Please come and join us. For more information you can contact Mary Jo at Wisconsin Judicare, Inc. (715) 842-1681.

Thanks, David Raasch

educators who are just entering the field aligns well with CMN faculty goals. "Beginning that first classroom assignment is an exciting and stressful time for new Education graduates," Chelberg says. "If we can help make it a smooth transition through coaching and mentoring, the new educator will navigate the year more successfully, start a pattern of effective teaching, and provide the greatest benefit to his or her students."

The award, which provides funds through May 2023, will support CMN's plans for innovative changes in teacher preparation. Key among these will be development of a continuum of culturally responsive educational pathways to success for CMN students and multiple layers of support for graduates in the first year of their teaching careers.

CMN is partnering with two other Wisconsin colleges to share resources and provide multiple pathways and opportunities for students. Collaborating with CMN in offering its Advanced Certification in Elementary Education is Edgewood College, Madison. Students at Lac Courte Oreilles Ojibwa Community College in Hayward will be eligible for scholarship assistance and support innovations as a result of the grant. The Wisconsin Early Childhood Association (WECA) provided grant application support and is partnering with CMN in providing scholarship and professional development opportunities for students of all three of the partner colleges. A significant percentage of the Education program's students at CMN are tribal members or “Access to the internet creates access to services. So, lack of access to services means a lack of access to vital needs that families and individuals have, and compounds disparities that existed before the pandemic,” Harris said at a White House event alongside Interior Secretary Deb Haaland, Commerce Secretary Gina Raimondo and tribal leader Shannon Holsey.

Nearly 40% of Native American and Alaskan native households lack broadband, Shannon Holsey, president of the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohicans, located in Wisconsin, said at the event. Federal Communications Commission data from 2019 revealed tribal nations often have far fewer choices of broadband service than their non-tribal neighbors.

Virtually “every sector” of infrastructure is substandard in Indian Country, Holsey said, but without reliable and affordable internet access, I am thrilled that President Biden has asked Vice-President Harris to lead the effort to expand broadband access across our nation. Indian Country is in fully support of this much needed infrastructure support and helps address the digital divide that exists in every native community. We look forward to working in strong partnership with the Biden-Harris Administration. Expanding broadband in our communities is not just a game changer for Tribal Nations, it’s a life changer.

“Expanding broadband access would transform native communities, promote economic development and empower tribal nation governments to provide critical services, including health care, education, public safety and emergency services,” Holsey said.

The destruction and degradation of our Indigenous sacred sites is the direct result of governments’ failure to engage with tribal nations and communities before decisions are made on large-scale projects like the Keystone XL pipeline.

The developer’s decision follows years of relentless work and dedication from tribes and grassroots organizers to halt the pipeline development. For years, Native grassroots organizers have joined with the traditional leaders and sovereign nations like Rosebud Sioux Tribe, Lower Brule Sioux Tribe, Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, Oglala Lakota Nation, and Yankton Sioux Tribe, to stop this project. Farmers, tribal councils, ranchers, and Native community groups and traditional societies have been instrumental in raising awareness around the significant threats to the health and resources of Native peoples living in the path of the pipeline. And sovereign tribes have taken the issue to court to protect their territories and the Missouri River bioregion for all.

Native tribes and communities are coming together in Minnesota, Michigan, and North Carolina where lands and water are also being threatened by pipelines. We urge the Biden Administration to continue the path of recognizing that building pipelines only reinforces the past failed energy policies.

We hope this is representative of new era where tribes are part of the decision-making process and informed about the use of our lands, waters, and natural resources. Tribes are legally and morally entitled to give or deny consent at all phases of future development and infrastructure projects that impact treaty lands. This prior and informed consent is what the treaties demand.”

Holsey ended by saying, “As stewards and protectors of Mother Earth it is hard to imagine that the politics of the day have to cloud every decision made these days, but it’s hard to argue with the present-day facts and future projections. Ending Keystone was absolutely the right call”.

2020 Stockbridge-Munsee Water System Consumer Confidence Report - Is my water safe?

This report is designed to provide details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to standards set by regulatory agencies. This report is a snapshot of last year's water quality. We are committed to keeping you informed and allies.

Do I need to take special precautions?

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers.

EPA/Centers for Disease Control (CDC) guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Water Drinking Hotline (800-426-4791).

Where does my water come from?

In a typical community water supply system, water is transported under pressure through a distribution network of buried pipes. Smaller pipes called house service lines, are attached to the main water lines to bring water from the distribution network to your house. In our community water supply system, water pressure is provided by pumping water into the storage tanks that stores water at higher elevations than the houses they serve. The force of gravity then "pushes" the water into your home when you open your tap. After the water is pumped it is treated with chlorine.

The drinking water distributed through the community water system originates as rainwater that percolates through the ground and is naturally filtered as it travels through the soil and rock. The water is most susceptible to becoming contaminated at the earth's surface. As the water travels underground both down gradient and from areas of greater pressure to least pressure, water collects in what is known as aquifers. Our wells are drilled into ground water aquifers and we pump water to the surface to use as drinking water.

The Stockbridge Munsee Environmental and Legal Departments created the Groundwater Protection ordinance to ensure that rainwater is not contaminated at the earth's surface before the water reaches the community's drinking water system's groundwater aquifer. The drinking water system groundwater aquifer lacks confining layers, which could stop the movement of pollutants. Instead, the groundwater aquifer is composed of sand and gravel, which allows contaminants to move downward rapidly. The Groundwater Protection Ordinance can be found on the Internet at; www.mohican.com/tribalordinance.html

Source water assessment and its availability

The Environmental Department has also completed a source water assessment and protection plan. The source water plans helped the Tribe identify potential contaminant sources and determined the susceptibility of each of the three wells, which support the Tribal drinking water system. Please contact the Stockbridge-Munsee Environmental Department at 715-793-4818 for a copy of the Source Water Plans or for more information.

Why are there contaminants in my drinking water?

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791). The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity:

microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, that may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife; inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial, or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming; pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban stormwater runoff, and residential uses; organic Chemical Contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems; and radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities. In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which must provide the protection for public health.

Additional Information for Lead

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. South Central Water System is responsible for providing high quality drinking water but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Info on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Water Quality Data Table

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of contaminants in water provided by public water systems. The table below lists all of the drinking water contaminants that we detected during the year of this report.

Although many more contaminants were tested, only those substances listed below were found in your water. All sources of drinking water contain some naturally occurring contaminants. At low levels, these substances are generally not harmful in our drinking water. Removing all contaminants would be extremely expensive, and in most cases, would not provide increased protection of public health. A few naturally occurring minerals may actually improve the taste of drinking water and have nutritional value at low levels. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table is from testing done in the calendar year of the report. The EPA or the State requires us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants do not vary significantly from year to year, or the system is not considered vulnerable to this type of contamination. As such, some of our data, though representative, may be more than one year old. In this table you will find terms and abbreviations that might not be familiar to you. To help you better understand these terms, we have provided the definitions below the table.

Contaminants	MCL G or MRDL G	MCL, TT, or MRDL	Detect In Your Water	Range		Sample Date	Violation	Typical Source

descendants, A significant percentage of the Education program's students at CMN are tribal members or descendants, with many living on Wisconsin reservations, and almost all preparing for work in communities having a significant number of American Indian families, as well as other ethnic groups.

"Many of our students have personally experienced cultural barriers and trauma," Chelberg says. "They see the impact on children in their community, and we hear from them over and over again how they want to help make a difference by becoming teachers. They have tremendous hope and potential for being change agents, but are weighed heavily by economics, family responsibilities, the demands of school, and the need for mentoring."

Chelberg adds, "We have always worked hard at making incremental advancements in our teacher education processes. Now, being able to simultaneously invest in adapting our delivery system to address challenges of low-income working/parenting students while building on the teaching-lodge model and other support systems, is going to be giant step forward for our program. I am thankful for the Collaborative's help in creating more viable, effective, and culturally relevant pathways for the future educators who want to work with our youngest and most vulnerable assets, our children."

The Collaborative was created in 2017. It's members are The Ballmer Group, Bezos Family Foundation, Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Buffett Early Childhood Fund, David and Lucile Packard Foundation, Foundation for Child Development, Heising-Simons Foundation, and Stranahan Foundation.

In announcing the year's grants, the Collaborative noted that "People of color, primarily women, make up nearly half of the ECE (early care and education) workforce and yet are not provided equal access to higher education, ongoing professional development, or professional compensation, especially in comparison to their peers in K-12 and despite the inherent complexity of their profession. They face a patchwork of federal, state, and local programs that vary in purpose, funding, and quality. These structural insufficiencies affect the workforce overall and affect early childhood educators of color disproportionately. And this has a direct impact on the learning outcomes of our nation's children."

"We must support the professionalization of our ECE workforce," said Dr. Rebecca Gomez, Program Officer at the Heising-Simons Foundation and co-chair of the Collaborative. "We need to attract, retain, and financially support students who bring racial, ethnic, linguistic, cultural, and socioeconomic diversity to a field that educates and cares for our equally diverse young people."

OPEN AGENDA-

TREASURER STATEMENT- Terrie K. Terrio, Tribal Treasurer

She is asking that the Tribal Members focus not so much on the negative as it is Election time and things do get ugly, accusations are made, and people remember the accusations made and do not remember the answers all the time and she is just asking instead of focusing on negative things to focus on the positive things that the Tribe has done that has been good. It was a horrible year for us, and we did the very best we could. At the last meeting, someone had asked to see the President's taxes and the agreement for an advisory position. She offered it to her peers which is Tribal Council, and I took her up on it. I reviewed her taxes, and I did not see anything wrong. The advisory agreement was just that an agreement. The agreement had nothing to do with the business and I feel good that I reviewed it and I did not see anything wrong with it. I just do not want to go down that road like we did with Bob Chicks and destroy somebody. It is just not the right thing to do. We have enough people on the outside working against us that we do not need to be doing it to ourselves. I appreciate the time on the agenda. I appreciate you folks listening to me. I just want us to be a little kinder and more supportive of one another because it is for the benefit of all of us.
